RISK FACTORS

Risk Factors

Set out below is the risk factors in relation to the use and installation of the Font. Users are advised to read this chapter carefully, consult for advice from advisors who are deemed to be necessary, and consider all the relevant factors before they install the Font.

The Font may contain certain errors so that it may not function properly

The Font has been developed by the Creator alone and has not been tested by any specialist, thus the Font may contain errors. As some errors will cause the Windows to stop to display a font or output a font, such error may cause the Font to function improperly, or even stops to function, in the windows environment. Also, no test has been done on any printer. Therefore, no assurance has been given by the Creator and Issuer that the characters of the Font can be printed out by all the printers.

The Font and the File may be altered by third parties so that it will contain malicious content

The Font and the File is intended to be offered for download for free. Pursuant to the terms and conditions set forth in this Offering Prospectus, websites can offer the File for download at their own will. There is no assurance that no person will alter the File so that malicious content will be added to the File. Computers may be infected by virus, worm or other malicious program if the File is modified. Computers not protected by any anti-virus program are vulnerable to such threats. Users are warned that install of any file on any computer system involves risk. Both the Creator and Issuer will not be responsible for any loss incurred by the installation of the Font.

Technical support relating to the use of the Font is limited

Both the Creator and the Issuer does not have the intension to provide any customer service, and technical support service to any User in relation to the use of the Font. Users are warned that technical support service of the Font is limited. Users should exercise their sole and unfettered discretion to decide whether they should install the Font.

Technical Details of the Font

Technical Details of the Font

Format and working environment

The Font is in True Type Font Format, and is designed to be used on PC. No test has been done on Mac to verify that the Font can be used on Mac.

The following table summarized the major characteristics of the Font:

	Casey Replica	The Original Casey series
Format	True Type Font, TTF	Type 1, T1
Number of Characters	653 (not all of them contain glyphs)	unknown
Style	Only Regular is available	has been known that it is available in Regular, Bold and XBold

Basis of development

The Font has been developed based on the original Casey series. As the character map of the Casey series is unavailable, a Portable Document Format (“pdf”) document has been downloaded from the KCR website as the reference (“Reference Document”). Characters which can be identified in the Reference Document was captured and input into a font creation program as a base image.

Myriad Pro characters are used as a replacement for characters which cannot be found in the Reference Document. Given with the similarity of Myriad Pro and Casey in several major aspects of font design and creation, the Creator considered it is the appropriate choice for a replacement.

Railway symbols which are founded in the Font but not the Casey series are developed with reference to certain photographs taken against the railway symbols concerned. Not all railway symbols appear in KCR and MTR has been incorporated into the Font. Many are considered by the Creator as unsuitable to be incorporated as the symbols have more than one colour. Without the editing of an image processing software (e.g. Adobe Photoshop), font characters cannot have more than one colour displayed at the same time.

Contains differences with the original Casey series

Although reasonable care has been taken, the Font cannot be exactly identical to the original Casey series. Moreover, certain characters have been deliberately developed in a different way so that the Font can be distinguished from the Casey series. Users are advised to notice that the Font is a copycat version only and cannot be completely identical, nor is intended by the Creator to be identical, to the Casey series.

Compatibility with Certain Image Editing Software

Certain image editing software DO NOT support character 00A0 to FB02. Users should note that the use of the Font in those software is limited. Ulead PhotoImpact is known that the support of characters in it is limited.

ZeroWidth Characters

Certain characters of the Font have been designed as characters with zero width. ZeroWidth technology enables the characters which incorporated the design to have multiple colours. ZeroWidth Characters are actually a combination of two or more characters on different layers, while the “base” image has zero width, the “top layer” image will have a width which will cover both the “base” and the “top layer”. To insert a ZeroWidth character, the “base” image should be inserted first. After the configuration of its size, colour and other particulars, the “top layer” characters should be followed.

For instance, the character is produced in accordance with the following procedures:

1. The “base” image is inserted
2. Highlight the character (No indication that the character has been highlighted will be shown as there is “no width” to show that the character is highlighted), set font size, base colour and character colour.¹

3. Insert the “top layer” character and configure the font size, and character colour.

Note:

1. In this process, as the “base” character has zero width, mouse click highlight will be problematic. Users are recommended to highlight the “base” character concerned by using the keyboard (i.e. “Shift + ←”). Users should aware that once the colour of a character has been set in white, the existence of which will be difficult to notice.

Technical Details of the Font

Set out below is the list of ZeroWidth Characters in the Font and their respective character pairs.

Base	Top Layer	Combination
	 (URL version)
 then 	 (AEL version)
	 or 	 or
 and  or  and  or  and  or  and 		 or  or  or

 or  or 		 or  or

Certain ZeroWidth Characters will have its normal width counterparts provided.

WARNING

ZeroWidth Characters are only designed for dedicated and professional uses. They should be used with caution as any mal-configuration may lead to irreversible damage. It is recommended that only expert users should use ZeroWidth Characters.

The Creator, the Issuer and the Commenter and Information Supplier are not responsible for the use of ZeroWidth Characters by individual Users, nor should they be held responsible for any loss incurred or arose in association with the use of ZeroWidth Characters.
